

Hey Folks!

Well, we are that much closer to waves hitting the shores with February gone past! The fishing in February was sporadic. The crappies were the toughest. Many holes were needed to even catch a feed for most fishermen. The northern pike bit o.k., but we did not have many pike fisherman through.

And as usual, February is one of the blah months for trout on Crow Lake, but a few of the back lakes were at their peak. Walleyes seemed to be the easiest fish to catch the last while. Spoons, jigs and even a plain hook tipped with a small to medium sized minnow are all working for walleyes. You had to do some sifting and sorting to get through the small ones, but the action has been steady.

Our weather for the most part of February was warmer than normal, with some days being very nice. All in all, February was a good month.

We are looking forward to March, as it is usually the best month for ice fishing. For those of you that enjoy this sport, take advantage of March and have some fun out on the ice!

Some things to remember:
